We all remember the winners and we definitely remember the losers, as reality shows have rapidly taken over our television schedules. We've got ice dancing, wife swapping, jungle surviving, driving schools, castaways, DIY disasters, pop stars,whatever next?

This indoor teambuilding event invites you to create a short video/ pilot episode for the next generation of reality-based entertainment to hit our screens. Taxed with a strict production budget, each team must write, film and star in a reality show of their choice.

Having plotted the subject and style of their reality show, delegates must define their objectives and prioritise accordingly. Teams will be provided with props, costumes, hats and wigs and they must utilise individual skills to maximum effect to achieve their objectives against tight deadlines.

Good communication, teamwork, decision-making, innovation, humour and imagination are essential to produce the best clip. All clips are given a 'big screen' preview and rated by a panel of judges. Will you be crowned the winners?
